"Five more minutes." Then the meltdown. Then the guilt.

If school breaks in your home have turned into long days of tablets, tears and 'I'm bored,' you're not a bad parent. Many apps are built to be hard to put down, and holidays remove the structure that usually keeps them in check.

This warm, guilt-free guide shows you how to plan the break before day one, handle the moment the screen goes off, and turn boredom into the place where imagination begins.

Picture it: a blanket fort, flour on the counter, your child laughing at a game you invented together. Start with one game tonight.

Give Them Back Their Wonder

100 screen-free games to bring the laughter back

CLARA WHITFIELD