"Everyone has someone. Except me."

If that thought finds you every December, you are not broken, and you are far from alone. The holidays turn the volume up on everything: loneliness, family questions, old memories, the photos on your phone.

This book won't ask you to pretend. It will help you understand what you feel, because named feelings lose their power; plan the hardest days hour by hour, because empty days fill with worry; answer 'So, are you seeing anyone?' with calm, ready words; and build small rituals that make the season feel like yours again.

Start with one page tonight. The light is still on.

STILL LIT · CLARA WHITFIELD

Still Lit

For every woman who feels alone at Christmas

CLARA WHITFIELD